Red Eclipse aims to be an excellent example of game design for the best aspects of the modern free, open-source engines. We have a vibrant community with lots of constructive, intelligent feedback on our forums and Discord channel, to help make the game better. We will try to build up more and more of a cohesive story, without sacrificing gameplay and playability, creating a variety of gameplay approaches. License: Red Eclipse is distributed under the MIT License. I am currently looking for people to add to this list. If you are reading this on a Mac you can just leave your name here. If you would like to help out the project please contact me on Github, or via our Discord server: My name is Brandon and I am about to start creating the first weekend project of my life. I am creating a free, open source FPS built entirely in Java, using the sdl2 library to create a Windows, Linux, and OSX capable game. I'm a huge fan of the first person shooter genre, and most of what I've played falls into the fps / rts categories. While these genres have their merits, I feel that modern rts are too weighty, and fps are too slow paced. I want to provide a lightweight, fast paced rts that will provide a real game for a fraction of the cost. In the last few weeks I've been refactoring the engine, writing a beautiful map editor, and creating 3 environments. This weekend I will be focusing on writing a first person character, adding in weapon reload animations, and then I'll be pressing on with the design and creation of the levels. So I would love if you could join me on this creative and unique project, to help me make something that feels like the classic war games of the 90s, but I wouldn't if you don't have a decent amount of time to spend on this project. I would love to hear from you if you're interested in joining the team or just want to throw some feedback my way. I look forward to seeing your creations, and having a blast creating what I feel is the very best FPS free and open source game around. All of this has been done with out the help of any sponsors other than the forum. It's a quiet project which has been a lot of fun to work on. All you need to do is check out the forum and join if you want

DROD is a solo puzzle-platformer. Players must navigate a strange, dangerous world that is collapsing around them. They are lost and in need of shelter. They must find a way to climb to safety. But what enemies will be hiding on the way? Every puzzle is unique and features an original soundtrack. Solving a puzzle will reward the player with new power-ups and continue the game. DROD features a completely re-designed physics engine. Players can now climb and maneuver around all sorts of environments. This puts players into a variety of challenging scenarios such as a water-filled room and the roof of a house. DROD also features fully dynamic lighting and weather. DROD features several score attack levels, 5 mini-boss fights, and various boss battles. DROD's unique puzzles encourage experimentation and an exploration of new tactics. Players can easily find satisfying solutions to their greatest challenges. DROD will soon be available on PC, Mac, iOS and Android devices.Q: Using different ports for different targets in one eclipse workspace I have 2 pc's in which I have build and running the jar created.I have checked the ports used for each target separately. My question is can I use one workspace of eclipse to develop and run the jar on two PC's at the same time.If so how can I do it? A: Assuming you're referring to the "Run As" menu option in Eclipse, you can set different ports for different run configurations for a given project. In recent years, in view of problems associated with depletion of petroleum resources and global environmental change, power storage systems using electrochemical reactions and chemical reactions, especially, secondary batteries and fuel cells have been recognized as core technologies for realizing inexpensive and clean energy. A secondary battery is a rechargeable secondary battery, and lithium ion secondary batteries have high capacity and high energy density, so that they have been widely used as power supplies for driving the mobile devices, laptop computers, etc. Recently, with the increase in size and weight of the mobile devices, there has been a demand for a decrease in the size and weight of the secondary batteries. Conventionally, nickel cadmium batteries, nickel hydrogen batteries, lithium ion secondary batteries, etc. have been known as secondary batteries for such a demand. These batteries may use graphite as the negative electrode material. These batteries have a problem in that graphite used as the c9d1549cdd

A long time ago, in a far off land, the Sanada clan met some of the other clans of Ako, who shared their deep admiration of the power and beauty of our people. The Sanada and other clans forged a strong, yet fragile alliance and built a town for themselves, of which the mountain in the midst of which it lies is a name, and the fortress on the cliffs above is a symbol, the Sanada family crest. Once upon a time, Sanada Masayuki led an arm of this alliance as well as an army of Mitama. Now, he holds the white flag. The land that is now ruled by the Mitama has two countries and six nations. The Kumaso, once the strongest army in all of Ako, is now fractured and isolated on one side of the country, and the Ragyo, once the invincible army of the other nation, is now frightened and forlorn on the other side. The Sanada and the other Mitama are isolated behind the lines, their armies already weakened by one force and untrustworthy. To their sides, the fast-growing Rikon army has an even stronger army. The Sanada is once again determined to take the field. Fortunes will rise and fall on a single battle. Will the Sanada rise to this challenge? Will their enemies tear them down? Will the world change forever?Strange Hill, Berkshire Strange Hill is a small village and civil parish in the county of Berkshire, England. It is located near the western edge of the M4 motorway, about north of Reading and southeast of Newbury. History The name is derived from the Norman word strandé meaning strand (with reference to the nearby'strand' of the River Stour). The manor of Strange was recorded in the Domesday Book of 1086, when Hugh de Lacy, 1st Earl of Ulster held the land. The manor had previously been held by Earl Ralph, and before that King Edward. In 1086, the land was held by the king and earl, and had eight households and value of £6. This was in the hundred of Eweston, and the held of the lord here was Penefeld. Strange Hill (or Strand Hill as it was originally called) had a population of 1,440 in the 2001 census and 1,459 in the 2011 Census, which is less than
