In the meantime, I've left the 'Close' link under the 'Edit' link if you want to see what it looks like: The logic to show a new window or modal box is the same. I have to make sure the edit is done, and it only closes if the edit is abandoned. We're going to improve it a bit here, at which point you'll only see the edit link if the edit is confirmed or abandoned. Ask HN: How to design a font that's easy to read - antongribok How do you go about designing a font that looks good and is easy to read? I'm developing a blog in medium.com and the blog is in Fira Mono (the default font used on medium). I decided to switch to a new font.The font I've been using is most commonly known as Monotype Corsiva. I'm not a designer so I haven't read much about font performance. I haven't been testing font performance to see if it's an issue for me as I don't think it is but it is for a large userbase.Should I stick with Fira Mono or switch to a different font? ===== smt88 Read my tweets. Font performance is definitely a factor in content discovery. My secondary concern is the legibility of code, but
