The invention relates to a method for drying a particle layer, in which wet particles are dried in a liquid flow comprising gas bubbles in the liquid flow and are brought to a stable particle suspension in the liquid flow by virtue of the bubbling of the gas bubbles, and a liquid turbine and a device for carrying out the method, the liquid turbine comprising a housing with an inlet opening and an outlet opening. DE-A-14 83 775 discloses a method for drying moist granules in a liquid flow by virtue of the bubbling of the gas bubbles. The liquid flow is introduced into the housing of the liquid turbine and has an inlet opening and an outlet opening. The liquid flow is led in the housing in a horizontal direction, and the particles are brought to a stable particle suspension in the liquid flow by virtue of the bubbling of the gas bubbles. The housing is maintained at a temperature below the vapour pressure of the liquid which is in the housing so that the liquid in the housing does not evaporate. The particles are introduced into the liquid flow via the inlet opening. The particles are dried in the liquid flow by virtue of the fact that the gas bubbles entrain the particles from the particle suspension and carry the particles through the liquid flow to the outlet opening. The gas bubbles are produced by an apparatus including a nozzle which generates the liquid flow in the housing of the liquid turbine.
